Kendra Locklear Ordia

CANDIDATE, ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF INTERIOR DESIGN

Kendra Locklear Ordia is a senior interior designer at Perkins+Will in Dallas. She earned a Master of Interior Design from the University of Texas Austin where she focused on biophilic interior design guidelines for healthcare environments. She is a registered interior designer in the State of Texas, holds an NCIDQ certification and is a LEED BD+C accredited professional. As a practicing designer and researcher, her endeavors are rooted within the broader interdisciplinary topic of human behavior and the environment expressed in the themes of biophilic design, health and well-being, environmental quality and spatial ecologies. Her professional work at Perkins+Will, Lauckgroup, Gensler and CallisonRTKL allowed her exposure to project types including large scale healthcare, hospitality, workplace design and residential. Her creative, biophilic-inspired work has been exhibited at several international exhibitions including DesignLAB Next Nest Exhibition and at Curtains: The Center for American Architecture and Design Symposium.
